THE SOCIAL BUDGET.

THE PAST WEEK AMONG THE FASHIONABLE SET.

Thanksgiving Concert for the "Sheltering Arms" Hospital—The Stettinius-Carrington Wedding.

With three literary clubs in full swing, Richmond society bids fair to become, indeed, "a strange solution of knots" which is the social autocrat's definition of society in general. To avert this, so far as its example may, the Women's Club has decided on a little tea and a little informal conversation to be taken together on each Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, behind the scenes. These meetings will be known as social evenings, by way of distinction from the "literary" evenings, which, of course, will be substituted for flowers of tea, beginning, then, with Monday next, the evening, all Mondays will be "social" evenings.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Tucker Carrington, West Grace street, was the scene of one of the most elegant home weddings in the city. The bride, Miss Stettinius, was escorted by Mr. Carrington, a gentleman prominent in Chicago social and business circles, and Miss Judith Carrington, the charming representative of one of the oldest families in Virginia. The ceremony took place in the parlor, which was brilliantly decorated with flowers and green vines interwoven. The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace, and the bridesmaids wore pale blue and pink, respectively. The ceremony was presided over by the Rev. Dr. H. C. Cranz, of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Carrington, who performed the marriage ceremony, stood on the two low windows which open on Grace street, and the solemn service more than its intrinsic impressiveness.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the members of the immediate family and the most intimate friends of the young couple were afforded an opportunity to extend their congratulations in a reception. A handsome supper was served, the table decorations being in consonance with those of the rooms, and its appointments beautiful.

Those present from other cities were: Lieutenant and Mrs. James H. Erwin, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. John Grier, of St. Louis; Mr. H. C. Cranz, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. John Carrington, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. George J. Roberts, of Philadelphia; Mr. Theodore N. McAdoo, of Washington; and Lieutenant W. S. Miller, of St. A. C. Eggleston.

Mr. and Mrs. Stettinius took a late train for the West. They will reside in Chicago, and were followed thither by the warmest good wishes of hundreds of friends in the Old Dominion and elsewhere.

HANDSOME WEDDING GIFTS.
 Miss Carrington's popularity was substantially attested in one of the handsomest collections of wedding presents ever received by a Richmond bride. These represented friends in widely distant parts of the country and were not only numerous, but exceedingly valuable, and without exception, in the very finest taste.

The evening of October 25th Mrs. N. T. Robinson, 632 east Franklin, will be at home to her friends, in honor of Mrs. James Halsey, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Robinson is the very charming daughter of one of the ablest and wealthiest lawyers of Atlanta. Their wedding took place in that city on the 15th, and was one of the most elegant affairs of the season.

They will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Robinson during their stay in this city. Invitations to be out early this week and the following have been invited to receive.

Mr. and Mrs. Barton Wells, Dr. and Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Sallie Waller, of Mobile; Mrs. James Halsey, of Philadelphia; Misses Sallie Bruce, Irene Langhorne, Angie Amatt, Ellen Blair, Mary Mason Anderson, Berta Wellford, Thos. Delancey Archer, Meta Logan, Minnie Cox, and Anna Boykin.

The concert under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Societies of Grace Episcopal Church, will be given from Friday last until this coming Tuesday. On that evening Miss May Talley's studio on north Fifth street, will overflow with harmony. Miss Minnie Meade, Miss Barton, and Capt. Frank Cunningham will, with Mrs. Talley, furnish the music, and Mr. von Valentini will delight the audience with some of his inimitable readings.

The affair promises to be a highly enjoyable one, and the ladies in charge look to it as sure to result in substantial additions to their treasury.

Of the premiums awarded for floral exhibits at the Exposition Mrs. Dr. Robinson, whose success in growing flowers sustains the truth of the saying, "Flowers flourish best in the gardens of those who love them," won no less than thirteen premiums.

Miss Kate Field has the following in the latest issue of the "Washington Herald": Perched on the eastern slope of the Hot Springs mountains is the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Axtell. Mr. Axtell is the President of the Virginia Hot Springs Company. To his good judgment, patient investigation and professional training as a civil engineer, is due much of the success that has attended the development of a valley that includes the Warm Springs, Hot Springs and Healing Springs of Virginia. Mrs. Axtell is a charming woman of the best southern type. She makes friends of all with whom she comes in contact.

The two mountains that stand as gates to the Hot Springs have been named Mount Ingle and Mount Axtell in honor of their most ardent admirers. Mr. Ingle is opening a bridge and foot path from the base of the mountain to the full length of the western ridge to Healing Springs, a distance of five miles. The view is beautiful.

Mrs. Southgate Lemmon, of Baltimore, who has been visiting Oct. and Mrs. Miles Cary, returned to her home on Friday last. While here, two luncheons and a tea were given in her honor, and on Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hollis, entertained her and her host and hostess, in a theatre party.

The two luncheons were given by Mrs. James Allison, on Friday of last week, and by Mrs. Cannon, on Tuesday, at 2 o'clock.

Those enjoying Mrs. Allison's hospitality, which was beautifully extended in a superb menu, exquisite table appointments and decorations, were Mrs. Southgate Lemmon, Mrs. Miles Cary, Mrs. Edward Crump, Mrs. Chas. Wortham, and Mrs. Chas. Hollis.

Mrs. Cannon's luncheon was an equally beautiful one, and was given on Friday last. Those present were Mrs. Southgate Lemmon, Mrs. Miles Cary, Mrs. Chas. Wortham, Mrs. Miles Cary, Mrs. Chas. Wortham, Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Rev. Crump, Mrs. John Lightfoot, Mrs. S. G. Wallace, Mrs. Allan Barkshire, Mrs. Quinlan, and Mrs. Ed. Crump.

Mrs. Edward Crump's tea on Tuesday evening, at 6 o'clock, was as delightful as it was informal. Among twenty-five ladies present were Mrs. Southgate Lemmon, Mrs. Miles Cary, Mrs. Bolling, of Mobile, Mrs. Charles U. Williams, Mrs. Virginia Williams, Mrs. Chas. Wortham, Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Mrs. S. G. Wallace, Mrs. Archer Anderson, Mrs. Thomas N. Carter, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Chas. Wortham, Mrs. John Lightfoot, Mrs. S. G. Wallace, Mrs. Allan Barkshire, Mrs. Quinlan, Mrs. Norman Randolph, and Miss Lily Cannon.

The Beethoven Orchestra, of which Mr. Edward L. Turnbull is leader, and which is composed entirely of gentlemen, all of whom are well-known in Richmond, have offered their services to Mrs. E. T. Robinson, for the benefit of the "Sheltering Arms" Hospital, on Thanksgiving night the concert will be given.

The institution is now open for the reception of patients and for the reception of donations of money, articles, etc. The managers have been indefatigable in their efforts, and are gratified to receive the response to them. The King's daughters are anxious to be of service and are loyal in their interest, but are not yet posted as to the needs of the hospital as is desirable. In such a case what could be more sensible than to take some immediate step toward posting them.

THE SCOTT COUNTY FIND.

SKELETONS NOT THE VICTIMS OF A WHITE MAN'S CRIME.

Interesting Stories About "Wolf Hills" and Other Places in the Southwest—The Valley Honey-Combed With Catacombs.

NEWCASTLE, VA., Oct. 20.—Special.—It was with a good deal of surprise and some wild speculation that the local papers in the valley took up the announcement that a great mystery, a long hidden crime had come to light, and that human bones had been discovered in a cave near Scott county, Virginia. That was about a month ago, when a boy named Charles Reister, and a friend by the name of Morris, undertook to explore a natural shaft in the earth, and the boy was let down by a rope into a tomb. His surprise and horror was natural to the inquisitive lad, but thoughtful people should remember that our beautiful valley with its iron-hearted mountains on either side, is in some sections, honey-combed with natural catacombs which hold the bones of a former race of people far more interesting than the bones of the modern race, in any way connected with the valley.

But there is a story about the meaning of the bones found in the Etruscan chambers, and to the sepulchral heap—the rule of the valley of the civilized red man. This link is without a parallel of doubt a belief in the immortality of man. Elsewhere in the world, but another tomb around which man's last interest clings. The Red Man still owns his place here as does Abraham the double cave of Mchepel, E. S. G.

NOT A MODERN TRAGEDY.
 To my mind these skeletons do not belong to some bloody tragedy in later days, but speak with a mute insistence of the days of the pioneers and warn us never to forget them. The cave in Scott county then, was the scene of a tragedy, but another tomb around which man's last interest clings. The Red Man still owns his place here as does Abraham the double cave of Mchepel, E. S. G.

STAR COURSE ENTERTAINMENTS.
 A Series of Delightful Entertainments During the Coming Season.

All the arrangements have been perfected for the Star Course entertainments to be given during the coming winter at the big hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. The attractions of the Star Course are of the highest order, and the season has fairly opened it will be next to impossible to secure any place for the winter of 1894-95, nearly every one of the old subscribers obligated himself for the new season.

During the past summer the number of applicants for subscription tickets for the season has steadily increased, and so it has happened that only about fifty more tickets have been left over, which would not be taken during the winter of 1894-95. The season has fairly opened it will be next to impossible to secure any place for the winter of 1894-95, nearly every one of the old subscribers obligated himself for the new season.

Those who are not members of the Association may get the tickets at the following slight advance: For a single ticket, $5 for a double ticket and $5 for a triple ticket. The committee in charge of the entertainment, which is added to maintain the same rule which prevailed last winter, that no single admission ticket be sold to any of the entertainments.

The following is the programme for the ten entertainments that will form the Star Course during the coming winter:
 1. Mr. Frank Lincoln, world renowned humorist—Thursday, Nov. 15, 1894.

Throws Up the Sponge.
 Editor "The Times"—Sister, it was the close of the day last Thursday at the Exposition, the glorious October sun sinking behind the Soldier's Home, when the great Egyptian fortune-teller, who had his speech for "Now, ladies and gentlemen, I will give you one more chance. This is the most wonderful fortune-teller in the world—tells you your future wife or husband, recovers lost money and love, and thousands of true things too numerous to mention." But the people would not bite. The orator had sung all day and the people would not bite. It was now nearly night, and the red-nose fakir shook his head sadly. "No use, no use; you might as well talk to the wind. It's my opinion, boys, there is a little money in this Southern country. This Exposition is a dead failure—she has gone Democratic solid. Professor Pithing speaking to Buck Smith, colored, of Jackson ward. "Please blow us a tune from the Dead March in Pavi." And then the flag fell.

If you want the finest Key West cigar in the market, get INFANTA EULALIA—don't take a substitute.

And in the light of this truth, it is not in the least reasonable to suppose these skeletons are victims of a white man's crime. There were ten taken out in all, one found in a sitting posture and some of the bones were in a state of decay. Now as a matter of fact, this cave was on ground formerly in Pineaste county, and looking up the road, and the county I find several interesting stories which may or may not partly explain the mystery.

CAROLINA COTTON MILLS.

ALL OF THEM CROWDED WITH ORDEARS AND PROSPEROUS.

The Nineteen Factories in Alamance County Running on Full Time—Extensive Improvements.

GRAHAM, N. C., Oct. 20.—Special.—Whether it be due to the recent changes in the tariff laws or to other causes, the reader may judge for himself, but there has been within the last few weeks a revival of business in this part of the Old North State that the Republican stumpers would doubtless have preferred to keep back till after the election. All of our nineteen cotton factories in Alamance county except one are running on full time and paying full wages, and some of them are making extra time at night to keep up with orders. The proprietor of one of the factories in Graham told the writer this week that he had just rejected an order that would have required his full output of cloth, and that he was now making up his mind as to whether the machinery could be put in order.

But the best evidence of the healthy state of this important industry is the fact that three of the largest mills are making immense additions to their plants. The Thomas A. Holt mill of Haw River and the Aurora at Burlington already have up the walls for additions that will double their capacity, and Mr. L. H. Holt, of Graham, is enlarging the materials for an equally extensive enlargement of the Omaha Mills already the second largest mill in the State. Nor are these the only evidences of prosperity about us. A Haw River number of cottages and one very handsome residence have recently been completed. New buildings, many of them, but not new ones, are being erected everywhere. The population of twelve or fifteen years ago is now a thing of the past. The present population is now a thing of the past. The present population is now a thing of the past.

STRESS OF THE COTTON MILLS.
 Cotton manufacturing is the most important industry of this country, and the success with which it has been conducted is eventually a factor in the success of the country. Already about one-third of the spinning is done south of Mason and Dixon's Line, and cotton factories are multiplying in the Southern States with a rapidity that is almost amazing. Our nearness to the cotton fields and to the coal mines as well as the mild climate and abundant labor will soon make it impossible for the North to keep up successful competition in this great industry. The present generation of cotton in the cotton trade and our manufacturers are pushing into finer grades with an energy and success that may, every year, transfer the entire industry to the South.

Among the Southern States, South Carolina was second and North Carolina third. Within the last year the two last named States have changed positions, the annual consumption of cotton in North Carolina, reaching one hundred and seventy-four thousand bales.

BRACKING FINE HORSES.
 The breeding of fine horses, cows and hogs, and the raising of such stock as fruits and vegetables are enterprises that are rapidly engaging the attention of our people, but not to the detriment of the cotton and other farming interests.

The political calendar is beginning to boil. Several distinguished speakers have visited the country and the Democrats are anticipating the triumphant election of their entire ticket. Governor Thomas M. Holt has begun a canvass of the country, speaking to a large and enthusiastic audience at Haw River near his home on the night of the 15th.

A New Quartette.
 Indicative of Richmond's interest in music and musical education last week saw the organization of the Symphony Mandolin and Guitar Quartette. Its leader and first violinist is other than Mr. Frank Cosby, who is so well known in the cultured musical circles of Boston, where he has several years ago graduated from the New England Conservatory of that city. He is an artist of high rank and during his course of study at the Conservatory he was commended by the celebrated Louis Masse as a musician of great promise.

Mr. Cosby has had much experience as a musical director, and he is also accompanied by the best talent. This new quartette will be heard in this city this winter, and some rare musical feasts may be expected.
